Abstract

The comparison of private versus public educational institutions will be a point of contention for all of eternity. Both have unique importance in their specialized domains. Both types of institutions have a significant role to play in developing and producing India's future champions. Is the growth of the students just the responsibility of the schools? If so, would private or governmental ones be preferable? Many people believe that private institutions are superior than public schools, while others believe the contrary. There has been a fall in the number of children attending government schools in recent years as private schools have grown more prevalent in India. Does this imply that public schools are not superior? Which is better, private schools or government schools, has long been the subject of discussion. In this paper an attempt has been made to compare the private and government schools.
